WREN accepting applications for water resources education projects

The Water Resources Education Network (WREN) of the League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania Citizen Education Fund is accepting grant proposals for water resources education projects. Projects should be designed to encourage individual or collective action that will protect and improve local water resources. Funding will be awarded in two tracks: source water protection projects, which provide education on how to protect, improve or restore the drinking water source waters for the community's public drinking water system; and watershed protection projects, which provide education on protecting, improving or remediating the watershed from the impacts of non-point source pollution. Eligible applicants include partnerships of watershed associations, civic groups, community water systems, governmental entities and other public interest organizations.

The deadline to submit applications is April 1, 2005. For more information or a grant application, contact WREN Project Director Sherene Hess at (724) 465-4978 or Beth Marshall at (724) 465-468 or email wren@pa.lwv.org. The grant application is also available online at <http://pa.lwv.org/wren>.
