Community Stewards,
Register now for the first-ever conference...

Mid-Atlantic Highlands Biodiversity: Making the Connection in Your Community, June 16-18, 2005, The Conference Center, University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown, Johnstown, Pennsylvania

Come and learn how and why biodiversity conservation should play a vital role in your Highlands community. Share your unique conservation experiences for the benefit of others striving to improve their own communities. Featured Presentation: Hollows, Peepers & Highlanders: An Appalachian Mountain Ecology by George Constantz, PhD

A diversity of informative presentations on biodiversity and how it connects to virtually every aspect of a community, including ecology, economics, recreation, education, aesthetics, and quality of life. Four exciting tracks, each with many real-life examples of successful conservation: Projects, Community & Economics; Impacts & Connections; and Technology & Innovation.

Field trips featuring a selection of successful and challenging local restoration projects. Enjoyable and beneficial networking during breaks, but especially during... "Social Hour & a Half", followed by a "Local Fare" Welcome Dinner on the evening of June 16th AND during... the entertaining Friday June 17th evening event at the nearby Johnstown Heritage Discovery Center, featuring entertainment by historical folk singer and Pennsylvania Humanities Council Commonwealth Speaker Paula Purnell
